Martin Is Choice for G.O.P. Post

Massachusetts Man Is Favored by Willkie to Become National Chairman

Talks Are Given

Willkie and McNary Say Thank You at G. O. P. Dinner

Washington, July 9 (AP).—Representative Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, House minority leader, today was named chairman of the Republican national committee and director of the Willkie presidential campaign.

John D. M. Hamilton, present committee chairman, was selected as executive director. He will work under Martin.

Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican Presidential nominee, announced the appointments to a press conference after he had met with a subcommittee which the national committee authorized to make the selections.

Willkie also announced that Governor Harold E. Stassen, of Minnesota, who was keynote speaker at the Willkie campaign, would head a large campaign advisory committee.

Other appointments included formal selection of Russell Davenport of New York, former managing editor of Fortune Magazine, to serve as Willkie's personal representative who will work with Martin, and the assignment of Oren Root, Jr., young New York lawyer, to organization work among independent Willkie clubs.

Both Davenport and Root were associated with Willkie in those capacities during his campaign for the Republican nomination.

Dinner Meeting

Washington, July 9 (AP).—Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, the House minority leader, was reported today to be Wendell Willkie's choice for Republican national chairman and campaign manager.

Willkie, here for a round of interviews before starting a Colorado vacation, promised an announcement of his presidential campaign personnel about 10 a. m. standard time.

In advance, he told reporters that the man he originally had in mind would head the party's organization. It was generally expected that John Hamilton, present national chairman, would become a paid executive assistant.

Besides a breakfast meeting with 12 members of the Republican national committee, Willkie is expected to visit the capitol to talk with a group of senators interested in making a "Keep Out War" campaign. The group included Senators Johnson (R-Ill.), Nye (R-N.D.), and Vandenberg (R-Mich.).

Meets Running Mate

The presidential nominee met running mate, Senator Charles McNary of Oregon, for the first time yesterday, and after a reported talk they were in accord on campaign plans.

McNary said he was "impressed by Willkie's sincerity," and expressed the belief that he would be a great campaigner and a good president.

Two men attended a dinner last night for Republican members of Congress and made brief remarks.

Canada to Register Citizens Is Part of Human Mobilization

Ottawa, July 9 (AP).—Canada plans to register every person more than 16 years old—men and women alike—as the first step toward mobilization of human resources for war activity.

Among the aims is to provide workers for vital war industry. The government will ask complete particulars of age, physical condition, domestic responsibilities and occupation as well as willingness to serve the government.

This move, first under the National Resources Mobilization Law recently enacted by parliament, was announced last night by J. G. Gardiner, hitherto minister of agriculture, shortly after his appointment as minister of the new department of national war services in addition to his previous duties.

During the World War, a national registration was taken in June, 1918, but comparatively little use was made of the results because the war ended in November of that year.

R. L. Brooks, 29, Drowns in Creek

Body of Virginia Negro Is Recovered on Monday

Robert L. Brooks, 29, a negro of Route 1, Red Oak, Va., was found drowned in the Rondout creek shortly after 5 o'clock Monday afternoon. Brooks, who was employed on the Goldrick brickyard at East Kingston, had been missing since July 4.

Coroner Jesse McHugh of Wallkill rendered a verdict of accidental death by drowning after viewing the body when it was taken from the water.

It was at 4:20 o'clock Monday afternoon that Pat Watson, a cousin of the drowned man, called up police headquarters to report that Brooks had been missing since the Fourth of July. He said that Brooks was last seen shortly before 11 o'clock that evening when he had left Cleveland Thomas's place on the Strand.

Japanese Officer Demands That U.S. Apologize for Marine 'Insults' to Police

Shanghai, July 9 (AP).—Major General Saburo Miura, commander of Japanese gendarmes, demanded an apology today from the commander of United States marines in the international settlement for alleged maltreatment of 15 plainclothes gendarmes while in marine custody.

He declared that "speedy settlement of the incident is necessary or the matter is likely to take a grave turn."

Miura previously had apologized for presence of the gendarmes in the American defense area of the international settlement in violation of an agreement not to enter

French Say Attack May Come Soon

British May Turn Their Caribbean Blockade Into Battle Against Fleet

Edict Expected

Ultimatum Probably Would Be Similar to Former

Grenoble, France, July 9 (AP).—The French fleet blockaded at the Caribbean island of Martinique includes France's only aircraft carrier, the 22,146-ton Bearn, and is expected to be attacked by the British "at any moment," it was stated in a dispatch to the newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois today.

This fleet, which lies within the Pan-American neutrality zone, "is expecting a British ultimatum and intervention at any moment," said the dispatch, which came from Vichy, seat of the French government.

The fleet was said to be cut off from outside communication by the British blockade. French navy ministry sources were quoted as saying the French ships included the Bearn, the 6,496-ton training cruiser Jeanne D'Arc, several submarines and several smaller craft.

The ultimatum expected presumably was one such as the six-hour order delivered to the French fleet off Mers El-Kebir, Algeria, last week, demanding that the vessels comply with British conditions designed to keep them away from France and possible participation in the war on the side of Germany or Italy, or suffer attack.

The Algerian fleet chose attack.

To Suspend Clause

The French and Italian armistice committees have agreed at Toulon to suspend some of the disarmament clauses of the armistice treaty "due to the new circumstances" arising from the British attack on the French fleet off Oran, Algeria, last week, the newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois said today.

The French navy ministry announced Saturday it had notified Germany and Italy that the French Mediterranean naval bases would not be dismantled for the present, in order to defend the remainder of the fleet against attack. These bases were to have been dismantled under the armistice agreement.

Germany was said to be "in complete agreement" with the plan, and details were left to be negotiated between Italy and France, along with other Mediterranean matters.

12 Men Killed

The French naval command at the Mers El-Kebir base in Algeria announced, Le Petit Dauphinois said, that only 12 men were killed when the French colonial gunboat Rigault de Genouilly was torpedoed Friday by an unidentified submarine off Algiers.

The command said that another gunboat and two seaplanes accompanying the Rigault de Genouilly dropped several depth bombs, after which the submarine "gave no further signs of life."

Le Petit Dauphinois reported also that Pierre Laval, in a speech before French deputies and senators yesterday, said in discussing the government's proposed new constitution:

"I bring you not just my conviction but the certainty that if we wish an honorable peace we must give to Marshal (Henri Philippe) Petain what he asks."

"If you wish to conserve our free institutions it is necessary to accept the reform which Marshal Petain proposes to you."

Hercules Promotions

Wilmington, Del., July 9.—Hercules Powder Company announces the appointment of J. B. Johnson, formerly director of purchases, as assistant general manager of the explosives department. K. W. Jappe, formerly manager of the company's plant at Port Ewen, has been appointed director of purchases to succeed Mr. Johnson.

Disputed Murals at Bennett Field Destroyed

Here are two of four murals painted as a WPA project for the Administration Building at Floyd Bennett Airport, Brooklyn, which were protested as "Communist." The top one allegedly depicting the Russian plane which flew from Russia to California several years ago, and the bottom picture showing the Wright Brothers (right center) in Russian peasant garb. Objection also was taken to the red star, Communist emblem, on the hangar behind the plane at the top. These two pictures, along with one other, were ordered destroyed by Col. B. B. Somervell, WPA administrator.

Probe of Telegram Campaign to Aid Willkie Is Asked

Requests Are Received by Senate Group on Expenditures

Washington, July 9 (AP).—Chairman Gillette (D-Iowa) announced today that "several requests" had been received by the Senate campaign expenditures committee for an investigation of "the alleged high pressure telegram campaign in behalf of Wendell L. Willkie."

The chairman of the committee directed to police this year's Presidential and Senatorial elections said he would "lay the complaints before the committee in a few days for such decision as they direct."

The complaints, Gillette said, were that delegates to the Republican national convention which nominated Willkie were deluged by telegrams urging support of the utilities leader.

Gillette said he could not disclose sources of the complaints but that there were several, both oral and written.

"The committee has been and will continue to be very careful to prevent the use of its machinery for either smearing candidates or white washing candidates," the chairman said. "We are glad to make investigations within the purview of our authority on matters which are of public interest to the voter or might indicate the need of remedial legislation."

Failure to Register as German Agent Is Charge; Parallels Wolff's Arrest

Los Angeles, July 9 (AP).—Acting U. S. Attorney William Palmer says he has "plenty of new material" to place before the federal grand jury tomorrow in seeking the indictment of Dr. Herbert Hoehne, 29, held on a charge of failing to register as a German agent.

Meanwhile, Palmer indicated he is asking the advice of his superiors in Washington on whether to take action against German Consul General Fritz Widemann and Chancellor Herman Loeper of the San Francisco German consulate.

In holding Hoehne for grand jury investigation yesterday, U. S. Commissioner David Head said that "upon the evidence as offered before me" he would issue warrants charging the consular officials with conspiracy, if Palmer filed a complaint against them.

The government submitted a letter of introduction to Hoehne, signed by Loeper, saying that he "is traveling from San Francisco to Buenos Aires, Argentina, by airplane, taking along three small packages containing diplomatic mail from the foreign office in Berlin, Germany, to the German

Farley Declares 'We Are Going to Have Convention'

Bankhead Will Deliver the Keynote Address and Barkley Will Speak Tuesday Night

Chicago, July 9 (AP).—James A. Farley reported today that both he and President Roosevelt "thought it best" to keep the Chief Executive's views on the third term question "confidential."

The chairman of the Democratic national committee was asked at a press conference what the President said at their parley in Hyde Park, N. Y., last Sunday.

"I won't add anything to the story I told the newspapermen at Hyde Park," Farley replied.

Asked if he had been pledged to secrecy, Farley said: "I wasn't asked to keep it a secret, but both the President and I thought it best to keep confidential what we said to each other. It seems to me that everyone wants to read the last chapter of the book first. We're going to have a convention here and I hope it will be an interesting one."

British Are Free to Turn Upon Italy

Three-Fold Campaign Against Britain Is Object of Agreement by Dictators

Suez Is Listed

Destruction of Canal Is Prime Aim; Blockade Is Planned

(By The Associated Press)

Surrender of the entire French fleet at Alexandria to Britain was reported today as Rome dispatches disclosed a purported German-Italian agreement for a three-fold attack on the British empire.

The decision of French naval authorities to turn over the French fleet at Alexandria leaves the British free to seek out the Italian navy in the Mediterranean for the "future engagement" promised by Prime Minister Winston Churchill last week.

It came at a time, too, when reported German movements hinted at a Nazi attempt to wrest Britain's control over the Mediterranean stronghold of Gibraltar.

Triple Scheme

The triple scheme of attack on Britain, as outlined in Rome by the authoritative Virginia Gayda, sometimes known as Mussolini's "mouthpiece," calls for:

Destruction of Britain's empire contacts—which might include Gibraltar, Malta and the Suez Canal.

Defeat of the British "at home, in imperial territories" and at sea. Both Italy and Germany, Gayda said, have specific tasks for these goals, with Italy assigned to strike at four places on land and harry British shipping in the Atlantic, Mediterranean, Red Sea and Indian Ocean—above all, to "immobilize" Britain's sea power in the Mediterranean.

Meanwhile, First Lord of the British Admiralty A. V. Alexander revealed that the new 35,000-ton French battleship Richelieu was crippled at Dakar, French West Africa, in a daring raid by a British motorboat which dropped depth charges close under the Richelieu's stern and planes which torpedoes her.

Alexander said seven French capital ships have now been "accosted" since the British last week served an ultimatum on the French fleet either to surrender or scuttle their ships to prevent them from falling into the hands of the axis powers.

France's entry into the ranks of totalitarian states, under the domination of German conquest, appeared certain today when the French Chamber of Deputies approved, 395 to 3, a bill granting full powers to Premier Marshal Henri Philippe Petain's government to write a new constitution.

Petaín is expected to assume the title of "chief of state" in a virtual dictatorship—another link in the Nazi-Fascist "chain store" system of European governments under the influence or direct mastery of Hitler's government.

Already enrolled in this category, to a greater or lesser extent, are most of the nations which have fallen before the Nazi war machine as well as others now striving to preserve their existence by rallying to the Nazi-Fascist standard—such as Rumania and, to a lesser degree, Sweden.

Rumania's fate under pressure of Hungarian demands for the return of the Rumanian province of Transylvania, which belonged to the old Austro-Hungarian empire before the World War, seemed near a settlement.

Hungary's government leaders headed to Berlin today to discuss the situation with German and Italian foreign ministers and it was recalled that Hitler previously was reported to have promised Hungary her claims would be met.

Possible Break

The British struggle to destroy the threat of French naval power dominated the European conflict again while from the Orient came grim rumblings of a possible break between Britain and Japan.

The British reported this morning a "successful" action against France's 35,000-ton battleship Richelieu, which was being com-

Growers Develop Marketing Plans

Ithaca, N. Y., July 9—Nearly all parts of New York state are served by vegetable marketing committees which aim for cooperation between growers and distributors and for effective selling of vegetables and fruits.

Timely marketing information is sought, along with uniform quality of products and size of containers. Consumers are told about supplies and values of perishable produce, and the Federal surplus commodities corporation is notified of burdensome market surpluses.

For example, vegetable growers in eastern New York have had large supplies of southern asparagus in their city markets when local asparagus was ready for harvest. The same has been often true of carrots, cabbage, celery, and other crops.

This year a group of growers throughout the production area tried to estimate the period of harvest and the probable supply each week. A committee of growers received these reports, summarized them and then informed the wholesale trade of incoming local supplies. With this information, wholesalers can plan their supplies, and consumers know that fresh, locally grown vegetables are on the market.

With accurate information, the market committee says that local produce may move quickly and profitably to the benefit of growers, distributors, and consumers.

REPORT BRITISH BLOCKADE MARTINIQUE

At Fort de France (above), principal port on the French island of Martinique in the Caribbean Sea, the French admiralty said British cruisers have been seen off the coast for two days. Secretary of State Cordell Hull declined comment on an unofficial report that Britain was establishing a blockade to prevent movement of French naval units or planes from Martinique.

Ulster Farmers Will Save $29,000 on Interest Rates

New York state farmers will save about $275,000 a year for the next two years as a result of legislation just enacted by Congress reducing interest rates on Federal land bank and Land Bank Commissioner loans. Ulster county's share of the total is about $29,000.

The temporary rate of 3 1/2 per cent on first mortgage land bank loans will be continued for two years ending June 30, 1942, and during this period the interest rate on first and second mortgage Commissioner loans will be reduced from 4 to 3 1/2 per cent. Land bank and Commissioner loans were originally written at contract rates averaging about 5 per cent. The new rates apply to payments due on July 1 this year.

At present about 16,000 New York state farmers have land bank and Commissioner loans outstanding aggregating $57,600,000. The difference between the contract rate and the temporary rate thus effects a substantial saving for farmers.

Honor Flora Rose, College Director

Ithaca, N. Y., July 9—Faculty, students, and friends gave a testimonial dinner recently at Cornell University to Flora Rose, retiring director of the New York state college of home economics, and presented her with an oil portrait of herself. It was painted by Olaf Brauner, professor emeritus, of the school of fine arts, Cornell University.

In October, Miss Rose leaves the first college of home economics founded in the east and the second in the United States. She came to Cornell in 1907 as a lecturer, and worked with Martha Van Rensselaer to develop education in home economics.

They served as co-directors when the college was organized, and developed it from a six-weeks course, next a department, and then a college. Miss Van Rensselaer died in 1932.

Worked for Better Homes

Professor Mary Henry, who becomes acting director in the fall, said Miss Rose's ideal for the college was service. "She aimed at making better homes and finer families."

Cornelius Betten, dean of the University faculty, commented on Miss Rose's hard work throughout the years. "So long as Cornell University lasts," he said, the work in home economics is going to bear the impress of its early nurture."

Dr. A. R. Mann, director for southern education of the General Education Board, praised the accomplishment of both Flora Rose and Martha Van Rensselaer. "Difficulties, disappointments, and even discouragements came, but never frustration. They lived to see growth and achievement."

Carl E. Ladd, dean of the colleges of agriculture and home economics at Cornell, said he wanted to mention particularly one thing, "the number of farm and village women to whom Miss Rose brought a greater pride in their calling—homemaking—and of the inspiration imparted to it."

Claribel Nye of California, graduate and former staff member of the college, spoke of Miss Rose's hospitality, her respect for individuality, and her belief that a person can improve if she wants to.

Mrs. Jeannette Gardiner Powell, president of the college's alumnae association, said: "The greatest thing that Miss Rose taught us was that, to really live, we must start by giving."

Had Adventurous Spirit

President Day of Cornell spoke of her spirit of adventure, which, he said, requires genius to bring out and which marked Miss Rose's

(By The Associated Press)

Mute Muffled

New York—Tracy Murney, 39, may be exactly what the sign on his shirt front said: "Deaf mute. Thanks for anything," but Benson Wittmann, a deaf-mute passerby, was puzzled because Murney didn't respond to his hand signs.

Wittmann suggested in writing that Murney was strictly a phony and a schuffe ensued. Along came Patrolman Henry O'Connor, who himself knows the sign language. Murney went to jail on Wittmann's complaint of begging.

Moving Night

Norfolk, Va.—Police nabbed a couple of men they said were furnishing a new residence in a novel and somewhat illegal manner. They were hauling furniture in the dead of night by taxicab from a retail storage warehouse. On the second trip the cops moved in.

Salt Lake City—Jack White, 17-year-old caddy at Salt Lake Country Club, didn't mind golf balls whizzing around but bullets, well, that's different.

Jack was only vaguely aware of a blue uniformed man shouting from a hilltop as he approached the 12th tee. Then two bullets whistled past his head.

Jack learned, almost too late, that the officer, looking for an escaped convict, had been shouting at him and fired after the caddy ignored his command to halt.

U.S. Senate Desires Quick Approval Of Stimson, Knox

Charges Are Made That F. D. R. Is Setting Up War Cabinet; Debate Is Not Finished

Washington, July 9 (AP)—Amid charges that the administration was setting up a war cabinet, the Senate leadership strove today to obtain quick approval of President Roosevelt's Republican appointees to defense cabinet posts.

Even opponents conceded that the two nominees—Henry L. Stimson to be secretary of war and Frank Knox to be secretary of navy—would be confirmed, but debate was lasting longer than expected.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, expressed hope that both appointments would be out of the way by nightfall so that the Senate could pass the $4,000,000,000 navy expansion bill before Congress recesses Thursday night for the Democratic National Convention.

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) contended yesterday that Stimson had advocated policies which he said "immediately threaten to bring this war to the United States and fling us into it." (Both appointees have favored aid to the Allies.)

"If we are going into the war, which God forbid," Vandenberg said, "let it be by the deliberate judgment of the whole Congress of the United States and let it be a total war."

Senator Holt (D., W. Va.) told his colleagues and crowded galleries that Stimson had been "an Anglomaniac for 25 years." "He has been wine and dined by the British nobility," he added. "Unless this interventionist foreign policy is stopped, we're going into this war."

"America is establishing a war cabinet," said Harry H. Woodring, who resigned recently as secretary of war, announced that he would discuss national affairs tonight in a speech welcoming him back to Topeka, Kans. It will be broadcast (NBC blue network) at 8:30 p. m. Eastern Standard Time.

pleted at Brest even as Germany crushed France.

Location and details of the action were not disclosed but an official statement was expected later today. The admiralty announced last night the torpedoing of the British destroyer Whirlwind, 23rd sunk since the war began, but whether this was in connection with the blow against the Richelieu was not stated.

Nazis in Berlin said a new campaign—by air and sea—had been launched against British shipping. Dienst Aus Deutschland said 330,000 tons of merchant shipping under the British flag or bound for Britain had been destroyed in the last eight days—a record bettering figures for any month since the war started.

German air raiders stabbed at Britain all day Monday and on into this morning. The British said eight Nazi and three British planes were destroyed in the fighting. Casualties on the ground were "very few," the British government reported.

German radio stations at Berlin, Stuttgart, Cologne, Bremen, Hamburg and Frankfurt shut down early today, indicating British air raiders were in the vicinity.

The Germans said nine civilians who failed to go to shelters were killed yesterday by a British raid on Sliedrecht, The Netherlands. The reshaping of conquered France's government into a totalitarian mold meanwhile was expected to begin tomorrow or Thursday and Swiss reports said the House of Orleans hoped for restoration of the French throne.

In the Balkans, King Carol II sought to prevent creation of opposition groups in his own totalitarian party with a law banning revival of outlawed parties and organization of secret societies.

Papers Are Burned

London, July 9 (AP)—A plume of dark smoke rising from the chimney of the French embassy this morning disclosed that the French were destroying records and papers, following upon the severance of diplomatic relations with England. Members of the embassy staff said they were burning certain papers which were not important enough to take back to France, but which they did not want to fall into the hands of waste-paper dealers. The French have not yet arranged who shall look after their interests here.

Is Crippled

London, July 9 (AP)—The battleship Richelieu, 35,000-ton pride of the French navy, has been crippled by British naval and air action, a cheering House of Commons was informed today as another section of France's fleet was taken by the British.

has been in Congress since 1925. Four years ago he was eastern director of the Republican campaign, and last month he served as permanent chairman of the convention which nominated Willkie and McNary. A bachelor, he is 55 years old.

Willkie said he had not given much thought to rank-and-file committee personnel, but disclosed that Franklyn Waltman, Republican publicity chief, would be retained. Waltman was among those scheduled to fly on Willkie's chartered plane this afternoon to Colorado Springs, Colo.

The nominee, speaking to reporters in a hotel reception room yesterday, said he wanted to spend the first week of his vacation "just sleeping." During the second week, he said, he would begin preparation of his formal address accepting the Republican nomination. It is scheduled for his home town of Elwood, Ind., about August 1.

The nominee reiterated that he wanted no advisers in preparing his address and added: "I roll my own."

A crowd gathered at the airport yesterday when Willkie arrived by plane from New York. He told his greeters that he expected to be in the White House eight years—and only eight.

Sailor Says Four Men Fought Him

Four Are Questioned, Then Released; Arm Injured

Shortly before 3 o'clock this morning Joseph Alecca reported to the police department that there was a man lying in the road in front of 3 Beach street. Officers Camp and Harnen in one of the radio cars picked up the alarm and brought the man to police headquarters.

The man identified himself as Martin McCauley of Houston, Texas, and said he was a member of the crew of a vessel anchored in the Hudson river off Kingston Point. With him at police headquarters was his friend, Francis Deeyes of Houston, and also a member of the crew.

McCauley, according to the police, claimed that four men in an automobile had beaten him up. He was removed to the Kingston Hospital where it was found that one of his arms had been thrown out of the socket. No marks were found on his body to indicate that he had been beaten up.

The police say that McCauley had been drinking. According to the police the argument had started in Goffredi's place at 591 Broadway and had ended on Beach street.

The four men who McCauley claimed had beaten him up were rounded up by the police and taken to police headquarters where they were questioned closely. They denied any assault on McCauley and were not held.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JULY 9, 1940.

AMERICAN "EVACUATION"

The children's exodus reached its peak in New York city at the end of June and start of July. Thousands of boys and girls, laughing and eager, thronged railroad and bus stations and waved good-by to smiling parents. The children carried duffle bags, tennis rackets, fishing rods and other sports equipment. There wasn't a gas mask anywhere.

This great dispersion from the nation's metropolis was repeated on a smaller scale in other cities all over the country. It was the departure of fortunate American youths to camps—Scout camps, Campfire camps, private camps, fresh air camps, settlement house camps, Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. camps, and many others. Some children have gone for the summer, others for one or two weeks. They will have fun and fresh air and discipline, and that training in democracy which comes with learning to live and work and play with your contemporaries and to share in camp duties as well as fun.

Many an adult, at railroad or bus station in every section of the country, must have looked upon the departing offspring with a deepened sense of thankfulness and a prayer that tragedy and terror would never cast their shadows over these yearly flights from the cities.

GREAT LEADERSHIP

You have to admire Winston Churchill for telling his people the bitter truth and making them like it. In doing so he shows again a rare eloquence, fitted for the bigness and danger of the times.

"We must of course expect to be attacked, or even invaded in our island home," he said, after telling the House of Commons how the French fleet, newly become so great a peril to England, had been rendered harmless. "I call upon all subjects of His Majesty, and upon our allies and well-wishers—and there are not a few—all over the world, on both sides of the Atlantic, to give us their utmost aid."

"In the fullest harmony with our dominions we are moving through a period of extreme danger and of splendid hope, when every virtue of our race will be tested and all that we have and are will be freely staked. This is not a time for doubts or weaknesses. This is the supreme hour to which we are called."

Even Americans who "never did like the English" have to admire them for such a spirit, under such a leader.

DISCIPLINE

A French journalist remarks that the only cure for what ails France is "iron discipline." France cannot and must not die, but her case is hopeless unless she can subject herself to a degree of self-control beyond anything that volatile and capricious nation has known for generations.

And isn't it the same with other republics or democracies, including our own country? It is the nature of democracy to abuse freedom by turning it into carelessness and license. Such a happy-go-lucky way of life, in the present state of the world, leads to national death. The fact is clear in country after country that has gone down helplessly before the power of Nazi Germany because that country has made itself strong through discipline.

It is still to be seen whether democracies, for the sake of their own liberty, can or will make themselves strong enough to stand against nations made strong through slavery. It should be possible to do so, in this country, at least, without any real sacrifice of our free institutions. But there must be no delay. And among those accustomed to a soft life, there must be no whining.

SCARED EMPIRES

Poor, timid Russia! With only one-fourth of the world's land and only 180,000,000 people to defend it, Stalin feels obliged to make it safer around the edges. So he helps himself to a piece of Poland, and takes a slice of Finland, and then pushes down along the Baltic coast to take in Estonia and Latvia and Lithuania. And now he is engaged in swallowing Bessarabia and Bucovina and some minor bits of the Balkans, plus another Black Sea harbor or two, and annexing the mouth of the Danube river, which is the life stream of Central Europe.

From there, Stalin will probably move slowly on westward, taking a little more of this and that country as he goes, so that the big, bad wolves that infest all his thousands of miles of border can't tear poor Russia to pieces.

It was largely the example of Hitler, defending himself against the rapacious democracies of western Europe, that encouraged Stalin to such protective measures.

Now Mussolini likewise is engaged in "rectifying his borders" and defending his modern Roman Empire against all the little neighbors that envy his power and might gang up on him some time. And Japan is doing the same thing in eastern and southeastern Asia, on a scale befitting the immensity of that continent.

Only this democratic New World of ours is minding its own business—or trying to.

And now, having used up a lot of explosives to prove that these united colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states, it's time to get busy piling up ammunition for use against any dictator who thinks otherwise.

It should be understood that Mr. Willkie isn't the only fellow in America who can go around with tousled hair and a suit that looks as if it had been slept in. Some of the rest of us still retain the homely virtues.

"Upon what meat doth this our Willkie feed, that he is grown so great?" The answer, from Philadelphia, was a cheese sandwich on white bread and a glass of water, consumed in a cut-rate drug store.

An American propagandist demands a system of "thirty hours' work for forty hours' pay" when in most other countries the rule is about 60 hours' work for 20 hours' pay.

Men may think they're the lords of creation and the heads of their families, but they can't do anything about their wives' hats and shoes.

Census figures show that American cities are not growing so fast any more; they're mostly coming into the stability of middle age.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

HEART RATE INCREASES DURING DAY

You may be one of those individuals who like to count your pulse rate to learn whether or not your heart is beating too rapidly. You find that most of the time it is beating 72, or 76, or 80, or 84 to the minute, but it may beat 10 to 12 beats oftener than this and you think you have a slight rise in temperature. The thermometer, however, shows that your temperature is normal and you wonder what caused the increased pulse rate.

As a matter of fact, the pulse rate may change a number of times a day and yet your heart be normal in every way.

I have spoken before of reaching for my watch after awakening from a good night's sleep and finding the heart rate 68 or 70. After lying awake for a few minutes, during which time I may remember that I neglected some work of the day before, or I may try to plan some work for the day, I take my pulse rate again and find it up to 72 or 76, or even higher, and yet I haven't raised my head from the pillow. Just the mere thinking or planning can increase the heart rate.

Many find that eating a hearty meal will increase the heart rate considerably due either to the extra work put on the heart during digestion of food or because considerable gas has accumulated in the stomach which crowds against top of stomach which, in turn, pushes against the floor of the chest and crowds the heart so that it has to beat oftener.

Then come the trials, the difficulties, the problems of the day which require deep thought and anxiety, each or both of which can send the heart rate up 10 to 20 beats.

It may be for this reason that people living in the country live longer; their heart rate is not as likely to increase so much or so often as those living in the city.

However, there is no cause for worry about the heart if, at times, or most of the time, it is beating at or near the normal rate; that is, if the heart rate is within normal limits during most of the 24 hours of the day.

"Extensive and exact studies in the measurement of the heart rate of persons living in New York city have shown pulse rates ranging from 55 to 120 beats per minute in a "healthy" person in a normal twenty-four hour cycle.

Why Worry About Your Heart?

Is it skipping beats? Is it beating too rapidly? Has it a murmur? Do you get out of breath easily? Send for Dr. Barton's informative booklet on the heart entitled "Why Worry About Your Heart?" (No. 102). Enclose ten cents to cover cost of handling and mailing and address your request to The Bell Library, P. O. Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y., mentioning the Kingston Daily Freeman.

BEACH STRUTTER

Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT

Washington—The world is at war and cataclysmic things are happening . . . and perhaps that is why you haven't heard that the government is going in for machine-chosen men.

Before you know it, you'll be saying, "How did Mr. Zilch get where he is in government circles?" And the answer will be, "A machine put him there."

Over in the civil service commission, they are installing as fast as they can, bank after bank of machines into which you drop a card and the card comes out telling you just exactly what kind of a job a man should have.

Or let's put it another way: You need an A-1 accountant. You toss a handful of cards into the machine and out come the cards of one or two or a dozen A-1 accountants.

For Goodness' Sake

The national defense program has made this possible, but it wasn't the prime cause. For a long time, personnel officials have realized that the government hasn't been getting the most it could out of the hundreds of thousands of persons it hires, simply because there has been no way of classifying them and selecting for each job the man or woman whose education, background and experience best suit him for the spot.

There are expert stenographers who are filing clerks, architects serving on the capitol police force, lawyers doing publicity, and chemists writing reports on the shifting farm population.

This situation has come about simply because whenever there was an opening in any department there was a properly and politically recommended person for the job, and he or she got it—regardless of the fact that he or she might speak French where no French was needed, or wring secrets out of a slide rule whereas what was most important was the kind of a hand he or she wrote.

The personnel division of the civil service commission has known about this for years and has been eager to do something about it, but just trying something like that on your congressman and see how far YOU get. The defense program made funds available to the commission for just this business of getting the right people for the right jobs (efficiency suddenly comes of age) and, presto, the machines were in.

Survey Under Way

Already, a staff of 50 is at work on the project, and come August, there will be about 700 persons, all from civil service, thumbing the gadgets to put machine-picked men and women into government roles.

In preparation for this, 750,000 cards are being sent out, under the direction of William P. Lehman, asking for information about education, experience, etc. This survey covers all government employees except field workers of the postal service.

When the data is in it will be transferred to punch cards and filed. Then, when the business of filling a particular spot comes up the cards will be poured into the machine and, at the rate of 400 a minute, the machine will scan likely prospects and select the likeliest.

The new system will cost about $400,000 a year, but C. C. Edwards, statistics director at the commission, says it would be cheap at a whole lot more than that.

It will reduce the number of examinations for new jobs, cut to a few hours the time necessary to fill a vacancy, and provide an effective system for promotions.

Logic and Analysis Are Being Turned Upon Farley's Cryptic Statements After Hyde Park Conference

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, July 9.—The mysterious or rather cryptic comments made by Postmaster General Farley after his conference with President Roosevelt are being subjected to every form of logic, and penetrating analysis, with the consequence that most people in Washington are frankly bewildered and puzzled about whether the President is to be the Democratic party's nominee for the presidency.

Little clues in Mr. Farley's comment are being seized upon as a basis for deduction. Thus it is known the Postmaster General has been asked to a third term for the President. If Mr. Farley, therefore, said he had a "satisfactory" conference with Mr. Roosevelt, isn't it fair to assume that the President has bowed to the wishes of his hitherto principal political manager?

The answer must be in the negative because Mr. Farley also said he had talked "frankly" and the President had talked "frankly" which would rather seem to indicate a stalemate—Mr. Farley didn't convince the President and Mr. Roosevelt didn't change the mind of the Postmaster General. Other straws would seem to show which way the wind blows. Mr. Farley has for some time confided to friends that he did not intend to manage the Democratic national campaign this year. This applies whether Mr. Roosevelt or some one else is the nominee. So the gossip about Mr. Farley's possible affiliation with the New York Yankees' baseball club would appear to be founded on the knowledge that after the coming convention, Mr. Farley will retire from public life here, unless the convention nominates him for the vice presidency.

It is a fact that Mr. Roosevelt has discussed the 1940 Presidential nominations with Mr. Farley several times. Mr. Farley came to the conclusion that the President did not intend to be a candidate and would not accept the nomination if offered. This was what prompted the Postmaster General to allow his name to be put up for the Presidency in various states, particularly in Massachusetts.

Now it is true that the Postmaster general has not talked at length with the President about the third term situation for many months. Since then, "total war" has broken out in Europe. Many Democrats who previously were lukewarm about the idea now have come out for a third term for Mr. Roosevelt. It may well be that the President said to the Postmaster General that he did not want a third nomination, but that he would be guided by what the convention delegates decided.

Thus it may very well happen that the convention will name Mr. Roosevelt and then he will decline it, after which the delegates will insist on his running by nominating him even after he has declined, thus making it the demand of a party and a draft movement. If, Mr. Roosevelt at first declines and then accepts, it will result in a dramatic effort to persuade the country that the naming of Mr. Roosevelt was not controlled by him, but was the free action of the convention.

Nobody here feels very certain about it except the New Dealers, almost as a unit they exude confidence about the outcome. The middle-of-the-road Democrats and also the other candidates are playing it safe. They are proceeding on both assumptions—they will be ready to clamber aboard the bandwagon if the President indicates he will accept, and they will be ready for the grand scramble if by chance Mr. Roosevelt is adamant in refusing the nomination.

One thing is certain. The New Dealers control the convention and have about 800 votes which will be cast to name Mr. Roosevelt. After the nomination has been made, someone—possibly Mr. Farley—will have a letter from the President to read to the convention. After that—well there's no telling what can happen after the declaration has been expressed.

The Vice Presidency probably will go to Justice Douglas of the Supreme Court. If, on the other hand, Mr. Roosevelt doesn't agree to run, the nominee may be Attorney General Jackson for President and Justice Douglas for Vice President. This outcome is not expected by the Attorney General, who firmly believes the President will accept the nomination and make the race.

Few men have had a more difficult part to play than Mr. Farley in his joint role of chairman of the Democratic national committee and member of the President's cabinet. As an astute political manager, he knows the depth of the third term issue and unquestionably has advised the President that it may cause an unlooked for upheaval such as did the President's bid to enlarge the Supreme Court in 1937. But in reply, Mr. Roosevelt may have said that public life here, unless the convention nominates him for the vice presidency, since total war broke out and that Mr. Farley was mistaken.

Doubtless each stick to his own point and the final remark by the postmaster general to the press that he had told the President the country wanted to retain the Democratic party in power may be interpreted in two ways—that Mr. Farley thinks the nation wants to be Democratic, but the third term issue may prevent, or that Mr. Roosevelt would win.

Anyway, Mr. Farley's loyalty to the President and yet steadfast adherence to principle on the third term issue furnish an excellent example of circumspect demeanor in a delicate and difficult dilemma. (Reproduction Rights Reserved)

HUDSON RIVER STEAMBOATS

These articles are written from the collection of George W. Murdock, veteran marine engineer.

No. 186—American Eagle

One of the earlier steamboats to ply the waters of the Hudson river, the "American Eagle" made her appearance in 1831 and soon became a popular vessel along the banks of the lower section of the river and around New York harbor.

A complete record of the "American Eagle" cannot be found, and thus the only data concerning the vessel's construction places the date at 1831 and the location as Hoboken, New Jersey. Who her builder was or what her dimensions were, has been lost in the pages of time, but she was built for service on the New York and Harlem route to carry commuters between the two communities.

The "American Eagle" was what is now known as the "older type side-wheel steamboat," powered with the old type cross-head engine. This same type of engine was the predecessor of the more familiar walking-beam engine, and the famous old "Norwich" plied up and down the river for many years with a cross-head engine furnishing power for her churning paddle-wheels. It is believed that the "Norwich" was the last steamboat in operation on the Hudson river with the old cross-head engine.

Carrying freight and passengers out of New York, the "American Eagle" was in service on various routes for a number of years. In 1843 she was placed on a route between New York and Cold Spring Harbor, leaving the foot of Fulton street, Esplanade, every afternoon and proceeding to the Harlem dock where she made a landing and was met by horse-cars which conveyed her passengers to Fordham where stages ran to immediate points twice daily.

Leaving Harlem, the "American Eagle" pushed her way to New Rochelle, a community which was popular at that period in history as a summer resort for the well-to-do people of New York city. Ladies were often seen meeting the steamboat with fashionable rigs—either to transport the "head of the house" to his summer estate or to convey visitors who came up from the city for a stay in the country.

From New Rochelle the "American Eagle" would proceed to Glen Cove and Cold Spring Harbor—its terminus, and would then return to New York city. The vessel continued on this route until 1848 when she was sold.

On May 18, 1849, the steamboat "Empire," while on her way up the Hudson river to Troy, collided with the schooner "Noah Brown" in Newburgh Bay and had to be beached near Fishkill, with a loss of 24 lives. The steamboat "Hendrik Hudson" replaced the "Empire," and then the "American Eagle" came on the route until the damaged vessel could be returned to service.

The records next show the "American Eagle" on the route from New York to Low Point and New Hamburg in opposition to the "William Young"—a vessel which was constructed at Cornelius Carman's Shipyard at Low Point for Benjamin Carpenter. This latter vessel was launched on July 17, 1830, and was completed in September of that year. The "American Eagle" remained on this opposition route for a short while and was then placed in service on the Peekskill-New York route as a freight and passenger carrier. Sundays found the "American Eagle" in use as an excursion vessel.

Later in her history the "American Eagle" was running from Manhattanville to New York as a "market boat," and from that time on records of the steamboat "American Eagle" have vanished—and what finally happened to the vessel is unknown.

45 Boys Now at Camp Happyland

Much Improvement Noted in Many Youngsters at Health Camp Here

What good just a few days can do for 45 boys, who are at Camp Happyland, seems hard to believe, but already much improvement is noted in many of these youngsters, who have been at the health camp since last Tuesday.

A four-weeks' vacation will be given to each of these Ulster county and Kingston children.

The camp, located on Clifton avenue, Kingston, and maintained by the Christmas Seals Committee during the summer months for boys and girls between the ages of six and 12 is now in its 14th year.

A visit to camp these days will show one of the busiest places imaginable, from 7:30 a. m. to 8:30 p. m. A big program of activity, recreation and health is planned with a rest of two hours every afternoon.

Independence Day was duly celebrated at dinner with ice cream and a "Fourth of July" cake decorated and donated by Mother Salzman's Bakery. In the evening fire crackers and night works were on the program and three cheers went up for this big treat from James F. Loughran, the camp chairman.

Because of the cold and damp weather the water sport period in the newly painted pool had to be postponed until Friday afternoon. Now the boys hope for continued warm weather and a "swim" every day.

This part of the program with handicraft period proves to be one of the most popular parts of the camp routine. However, meal time always finds the "gang" washed up and ready for breakfast, dinner and supper as well as the light lunch under the trees in mid-morning and afternoon.

Already the boys are planning for Parent's Day July 21st from 3 to 5 p. m. They will give an entertainment for the visitors who will come to see them perform and learn at first hand the health ways of Camp Happyland.

County Court in Recess to July 22

At Which Time Earl Miller Will Be Sentenced

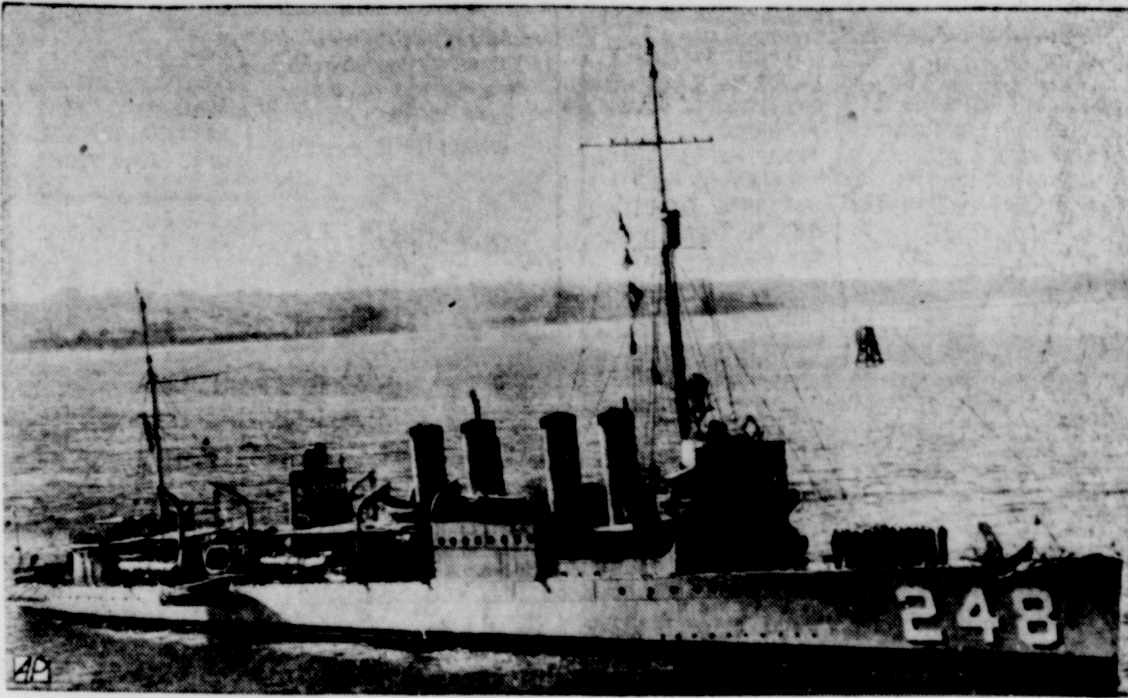

County Judge Andrew J. Cook held a short session of county court Monday afternoon. There were no matters ready and after moving civil matters over the term a recess was taken until July 22 at 2 o'clock at which time sentence will be pronounced on Earl Miller, recently convicted after trial of driving a car while intoxicated.

All jurors were excused until August 19 at 2 o'clock at which time they will report. At that time a judge from another county will preside for the disposition of matters in which Mr. Cook is disqualified because of having been connected with the cases prior to becoming county judge.

REPORTED SINKING STRICTLY PHONY

A mysterious SOS picked up by Mackay Radio reporting that the U. S. destroyer Barry (above) had been struck by a German submarine and was sinking, caused the government an anxious two hours before it determined that the message was strictly phony. The U. S. Navy, whose own communications system had not picked up the message, checked it and then reported: "The Navy has received a communication directly from the Barry and she is not in distress. She is peacefully at anchor." The Barry, known to be in Spanish waters, is attached to the squadron which the navy has long maintained in European waters.

The authorities believe that Brooks while walking along the dock slipped and fell into the water.

the outside world be cut off—as a means of ending the three-year-old Chinese-Japanese war.

Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita told British Ambassador Sir Robert Craigie the British reply was unsatisfactory and urged him to advise London to reconsider. A foreign office communiqué said Sir Robert had agreed to transmit Arita's request.

The British refusal was not entirely unexpected here, but some compromise offer had been expected and the shock to the Japanese was increased by the strong contrast with the French attitude.

France readily agreed to permit Japanese inspectors to supervise rail shipments through Indo-China into China to prevent military supplies from reaching the Chinese forces.

The Japanese press was unanimous in declaring that "an understanding" with the United States and Soviet Russia preceded the British reply and newspapers repeated previous charges that the United States fleet is acting as Britain's "watchdog in the Pacific."

The press at the same time reported Japan's roving diplomat, Naotake Sato, in conferences with German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop had received indications Germany would back Japan in any action against Britain in the Far East.

Col. Peck, who indicated informally that no apology would be forthcoming, said today he had asked the Japanese to explain additional violations of the agreement.

He declared Japanese attempted to drive two tanks into the zone Sunday but were stopped by a marine patrol and that Japanese drove 125 motor trucks into the area yesterday.

Col. Peck said he also had pointed out to Miura the "discourtesy" of the Japanese in failing to inform the Americans of Nishio's entrance into the American sector Sunday.

Yesterday the marine commander said the Japanese gendarmes "were given exactly the same consideration and treatment as any man we arrest, including a medical examination."

Col. Peck was scheduled to entertain a group of Japanese army officers at lunch today but as a result of the incident all but two of the Japanese guests declined the invitation.

P. J. Gillen Hurt In 3-Car Crash

Henry Street Man Loses Teeth; Cars Damaged

Philip J. Gillen of 46 Henry street was injured, but not seriously, in a three-car crash on Broadway shortly after 4 o'clock Monday afternoon. Mr. Gillen suffered a bump on the back of his head and the loss of two teeth, according to the police report. All three cars were damaged in the crash.

According to the police Edward Woyciechowski of Newark, N. J., was driving north on Broadway and when about in front of 539 Broadway, his car, which halted for another car, was struck in the rear by the Gillen car which in turn had been struck in the rear by a Mack truck owned by John Carmen and operated by Ben Allen Wright of Prattville, forcing the Gillen car into the New Jersey car.

Monday afternoon while the auto of Elizabeth Murphy of 203 Lucas avenue was parked at the curb in front of 308 East Chester street, it was struck by a trailer truck operated by Harold Jones of Syracuse. No personal injuries were reported but the Murphy car was damaged.

School Supervisor For City Schools

Mrs. Warren, Ogdensburg, Appointed to Newly Created Job Here

Mrs. Sadie J. Warren, for 16 years supervisor of elementary schools in Ogdensburg has been appointed to that position in the Kingston school system. The position was created but a few months ago. Mrs. Warren will work with the principals and teachers of the grade schools assisting co-ordinating the elementary school work. One of the purposes is to keep the work in each grade school progressing at the same rate and to direct elementary school work.

Mrs. Warren attended Potsdam Normal School, New York University and Teachers College at Columbia University. She taught in elementary grades at Ellensburg, Whitehall, Pearl River and Bay Shore, L. I. and then became supervisor of elementary schools in Ogdensburg under Superintendent Arthur J. Laidlaw, who became superintendent of schools here a year ago.

Prior to leaving Ogdensburg, Mrs. Warren was given a farewell by school principals, teachers, children and townspeople. Her many years of successful work made her familiar with the duties which she will assume in Kingston.

City Gives $5,324 To Red Cross Fund

Chairman States Amount Slightly Over Half of Kingston's Quota

Former Senator Charles W. Walton, chairman of the current campaign of the Ulster County Chapter American Red Cross for its quota of $20,000 for the nationwide war relief fund, announced today that the city of Kingston had contributed $5,324.54 to the fund.

"This amount is slightly over half of the city's quota," stated the chairman, "and we hope that the various wards will respond more rapidly in order that the city may reach its $10,000 share of the county fund as soon as possible."

Tabulated results show the First Ward leading with $1,291.43, and the Twelfth Ward second with $829.73.

Casual Slaughters

By VIRGINIA HANSON

Chapter 13 The Barge

YESTERDAY: Sandra brings a pompous man named Iman to a beach party. He looks like an actor but hints mysteriously that his vocation is a more vital one.

ADAM put his hands under my arms and, lifting me quite easily—I am always surprised at the strength in Adam's slender body—slung me over his shoulder like a sack of meal.

I stopped struggling when he began to catwalk along the narrow rim of the barge for, instead of a wobble, I could see too clearly the thirty-foot drop on either side.

"Don't let go," I prayed, with what breath was left in my diaphragm. "There's unpleasant dark water in the hold of the ship."

"Rain water," he responded practically. "Probably mosquitoes down there. Must send out some kerosene before the next beach party." He eased me to my feet. "I could carry you down the ladder," he boasted, "but you might not like it."

"I don't like it anyway," I confessed. "But I prefer to do it myself."

Adam says that his ninety-ninth great-grandmother grew disgusted with the aquatic life one day when her old man rose to the bait for the last time. So, having a pioneering spirit, she marshaled her children and fopped ashore to try life on dry land. But he thinks it was a mistake. Once a fish, always a fish, he says, and darts around in the water in a most improbable fashion, usually with his head and shoulders above the surface and his arms and legs all over the place. Once when he swam up behind me, and, wrapping them around me, bore me down, I thought an octopus had me.

I can swim, but I have yet to learn to breathe under water. He towed me to shore, finally, half drowned, and made me race him down the beach, almost, but not quite, letting me win. As I may have said, Adam is a man of principle.

Somewhat spent, I found a big piece of driftwood and sat upon it. He stood for a moment looking down at me, an odd little grin on his face.

"You're all right," he said and I thought he meant it for approval.

He sat down beside me then and began patiently to scoop and pour the dry, reluctant sand into hills and valleys.

"It's too dry—it won't stay," I told him after I had watched him idly for a few minutes.

"I know, you can't shape it. It's like this business of Immerman."

"Have you learned anything new?"

"Not a thing. He went back to barracks after you saw him at the Post Exchange, put on civilian clothes and said he was going to walk to the village. But no one admits having seen him there. We've asked at bars, pool halls, all the soldier hangouts. He had a girl who works at the local diner, but she says she hasn't seen him for two or three weeks. And she says he never gave her an insignia or anything else. I saw her myself, and I believe her."

"Felicia says the man jumped on her running board at the last red light in the village."

"I know, I asked her if it could have been Immerman. She said she never thought of it at the time, but admits she might not have recognized him with a mask on. She estimates the time at ten o'clock or later. It's not quite four miles to the village. He could have walked it in an hour, if he didn't pick up a ride. An hour and a half at the outside. So where was he between say four-thirty and ten o'clock?"

Dollar Bills

"GETTING the money?" I suggested, with what I felt to be an inspiration. And then I remembered something. "What did you mean when you said Corporal O'Connor might be interested in that box of money?"

Adam grew a deep breath and looked at me queerly for a moment.

"He was," he said, and went back to scooping sand.

"Any particular reason? Unless it's a state secret. Oh, that's very good! State secret—state police. Get it?"

"I got it," Adam said discouragingly. "A very particular reason, as it happens. He's looking for a little matter of fifty thousand dollars in twenty-dollar bills—twenty-five hundred of them, if your arithmetic agrees with mine. It's no secret. You read about it in the Chicago papers in June. Remember the Randal child?"

"You mean—the little girl who was kidnapped for a week and brought back unharmed? Yes, I remember. And the fifty thousand is ransom money? Oh, Adam, do you mean that the man in the burning car was the kidnaper?"

"I'm afraid not. It would be nice to know the world was rid of him, but unfortunately it wasn't the right money."

"But how can you know it isn't the right money? It was all burned up!" An exciting thought—to have seen fifty thousand dollars in ashes—probably the only form in which I would ever see it. "And maybe Immerman was the kidnaper, even if he did look like a bantam cock!"

Adam said, "You're not writing this, you know. You'll have to give the facts a chance."

"I'm trying to," I assured him. "If you'll only stop being so disgustingly important and mysterious and let out a few."

He laughed, in a satisfied way, and put out a hand toward me in an unfamiliar gesture that had grown familiar and puzzling to me—a reaching and withdrawing at almost the same instant.

He buried the hand and brought it up slowly, carefully, watching the sand run off in innumerable fine streams until only a few grains remained ridged along the back of each long, blunt finger.

There are two good reasons why we know it was not the ransom money, and why we know the kidnaper was not Immerman. Reasons known only to Corporal O'Connor and me—and Colonel Pennant, of course. I'll tell you because I know you can keep your mouth shut, and because you have helped me before.

"Thank you. Now that we've got that straight—"

"As you may not know, the fingerprints of every officer and enlisted man in the combined services are recorded in Washington. That was a wartime innovation and has been in effect ever since. A federal investigator managed to get the fingerprints of the Randal kidnaper, and those prints are not on file. Therefore the kidnaper is not Immerman."

"As for the money—that was a neat bit of work on Corporal O'Connor's part. He practically built a box around those ashes before he moved them from the car. He handled them with such care, and they had been so well packed in that it was possible, back at State Police Headquarters, to determine the denominations of some of the bills and to make photographs of their charred remains."

Wizard

"THEY weren't counterfeits?"

"Must I remind you again," he demanded good-naturedly, "that you are not writing that? They were not counterfeits. They were good old United States currency. But in so far as it was possible to determine, there were no twenties among them. There were upwards of two thousand bills; and the detective bureau, after hours of painstaking labor, were able to discover nothing but ones among them."

"One-dollar bills. Probably two thousand of them, all packed in a pasteboard box and burned almost, but not quite, beyond recognition."

"Why, the man must have been a miser."

He looked at me kindly. "Not a miser; a wizard. If you mean Immerman. It would take several years to put away even a thousand one-dollar bills on a soldier's twenty-one dollars a month. And Immerman was serving his first enlistment."

"I frowned impatiently. 'He needn't have saved it out of his pay. Maybe he inherited it, or stole it.'"

"All in one-dollar bills?"

"Or earned it in his spare time."

"Two afternoons a week for two years?"

"All right—what do you think?"

"I don't think anything except that it's fishy. And we know so little—we don't even know that the man in the car was Immerman. He was too badly burned to fingerprint him, and the man who would know about his teeth, if it was Immerman, is beyond reach for the time being. I mean the post dental surgeon. He has a month's leave with permission to visit foreign countries and is somewhere in Canada on a motor trip. We could probably get hold of him and bring him back, but it seems a shame to do it—the evidence will wait; and in the meantime we may get a line on Immerman. A soldier who knew him says he had been acting queerly, as if he was scared of something. There's always the possibility that he was in personal difficulties and has simply gone over the hill."

"What did the kidnaper look like?"

"No idea. No one saw him, and he's not a known criminal. The fingerprints are the only clue, which seems to indicate that he was a lucky beginner. Or unlucky, if you count the prints. No old hand would have left them—oh, oh! You're contaminating me with your low puns."

"Not bad for a beginner," I told him generously. "I won't charge you anything for the first lesson."

"What will you charge not to give me any more?"

"That comes high."

A faint halloo from the direction of the barge was succeeded by a clangor that sounded like someone beating out Coffee, coffee, without any cream on a tin pan.

The Call of Duty

Duty stands and points the way, and oh, how stern she seems: For the way in points is a way that leads away from our fondly dreams.

Duty's path is a dark by-road, while we long for the path of day. Where birds are singing and wild flowers bloom, and little children play.

Duty's path is old and worn by the tread of countless feet; But we find as we come to our journey's end that the once stern path is sweet.

Undertaker—Are you one of the mourners?
Scotty—I am, sir, the corpse owed me ten dollars.

New Democratic Slogan
Don't change Santa Claus in the middle of the chimney.

Two colored men were discussing politics and one politician in particular.
Sam—Well, Ah likes him all right. Ah guess, but his platform ain't no good.
Big Bill—Platform? Platform? Say, don't you know that a political platform is just like a platform on one of these railway cars—it ain't meant to stand on! It's just meant to get in on.

Do not think you are the only brainy man in the business; the rest of the staff don't.

An American was touring in Mexico, and on entering a hotel in the city noticed the words, "Tam Hiab" written on the mat:
American—Ah, I suppose that's Mexican for welcome!
Mexican—No, No. That's the bath mat upside down.

The stars and stripes remind us that our country's welfare has first claim on us as individuals. No task is too difficult, no sacrifice too great when danger threatens that flag... Patriotism demands our all.

Medical Officer—Have your specialties helped you any?
Seaman—Have they? They kept a tough sailor from hitting me.

It is never known if a man is honest until he becomes pinched. The real test comes when he must deny himself a few things in order to pay his debts.

Patron—Say, waiter, this steak isn't very tender.
Waiter—Well, did you expect it to put its arms around your neck and kiss you?

Women are more expensive than men because a woman's clothing wears out each year, according to a textile expert, while a man's attire, from hat to shoes, is made of more durable material. A woman pays a lot of attention to the styles.

Judge—Rastus, you are charged with disturbing the peace of the neighborhood. What have you to say?
Rastus—Well, Judge, it was this way. Me and Mandy had an argument. She smashed a plate on mah head and drops me hat. Then I rises up and swats her with a chair. Then she heaved a hot tea kettle at me.

Judge—I see. Then what happened?
Rastus—And then we gets mad and starts to fight.

Original Floor Plan
I've never cared for real estate: to me its mud or dust; But fate has showered some my way, and filled me with disgust. I guess I should have studied dirt; I've seen it dishied—and dug; But never dreamed I'd be called on to use it for a rug.

You see, we kept away for months; and now we've come back home To find our floors are one foot deep in fertile sandy loam. I've thought—from A to Z—of ways to clean this house of ours. It's such a job, I think, instead, I'll plant it full of flowers.

State Fair Premiums Will Exceed $15,000

Syracuse, July 9—State Fair premiums it was announced this week, will exceed $150,000 to be awarded during the nine day and night exposition at Syracuse from August 25 through September 2.

The 1940 Fair, celebrating its 100th anniversary, is expected to attract a new record in entries due to the large premium allocation.

Live stock exhibitors and agricultural product contestants will receive the majority of the premium total and competition is almost sure to attract a record entry total in view of the favorable response towards the shorter period fair.

The 1939 Exposition, it will be recalled, ran for 15 days and came while exhibitors touring other fairs, couldn't spend the entire period in Syracuse. The fact that all exhibits will run for only six days has attracted a record number of early entries from the largest live stock exhibitors in the country.

Particularly encouraging is the fact that all cattle exhibitors, more than 600 in all, will be present for the largest cattle show in history. All individual entrants of former fairs, some of whom dropped out last year, will be present for the 1940 show.

Money Goes 'Round
Tulsa, Okla. (AP)—Jack Gelfand, clerk of municipal court, takes in money paid as fines and for bonds. In counting it, he places it in bundles. On the top bill he places a small figure indicating the amount. "Those marked bills come back time after time," he says.

DAILY MENUS

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
Fresh and canned fruit juices can replace water in gelatins with the exception of pineapple juice.

Build Up With Liver

Dinner Serving 3 or 4

Braised Liver with Vegetables
Bread Butter
Jellied Fruit Salad
Salad Dressing
Chilled Melon Hot Coffee
Braised Liver with Vegetables
1 pound beef liver, sliced
3 tablespoons flour
4 tablespoons bacon fat
2/3 cup diced cooked carrots
1/4 cup cooked corn (or peas)
1 tablespoon minced onions
1 tablespoon minced parsley
2 tablespoons chopped green peppers (optional)
1/4 cup cream
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon paprika
Wash liver in cold water. Cover by three inches with water and simmer five minutes. Drain. Sprinkle liver with flour and brown quickly, on both sides in the fat, heated in a large-sized frying pan. Mix carrots, corn, onions, parsley and peppers. Spread on each piece of cooking liver. Cover and cook ten minutes. Add the cream and seasonings and cook five minutes. Carefully transfer to a heated serving platter.

Jellied Fruit Salad

1 package lemon flavored gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1/4 cup orange juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 cup salad dressing
1 cup chopped cabbage
1/2 cup diced pears
1/2 cup berries (any kind)
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dissolve gelatin in water. Cool and mix in the fruit juices and dressing. Chill until partially thick. Add other ingredients and pour into a mold. Chill until firm. Serve on crisp lettuce and pass more dressing.

Adults Need Pillows

Very small children can sleep without pillows because their heads are nearly as wide as their shoulders. Because an adult's shoulders are much wider than his head, a grown person who sleeps on his side needs the support of a pillow to avoid straining his neck and shoulder muscles.

Woodstock

By MARGUERITE HURTER

Woodstock, July 9—Blue Monday again. Or is it? Heaps of invitations in the mail and things up Woodstock way are coming so thick and fast we hope you won't miss anything.

Friday at 8:30 o'clock the Woodstock Artists' Association will open their 21st annual exhibition at the Gallery. Refreshments will be served. Here is your chance to view the best work of Woodstock artists and also to meet (in the flesh) famous ones who are seldom lured from their lair. As we mentioned at the last tea, we never saw so many famous people packed into one dimension. If you get lost, ask Jane Kennedy which way is which. Jane is the lady who manages the Gallery this season, and she knows how to smile with dimples! Jane tells us a percentage of receipts will go to the Red Cross.

Do you care for horses? Now, at the swanky Village Inn at Woodstock you can arrange for private riding lessons with Robert McLaughlin, who has brought up a stable of six of the most popular Central Park horses. And when we say Central Park horses you know that means a horse with practically a pink bow on his tail! Celebrities such as Gloria Vanderbilt and Lady Furness, who have been guesting at the Village Inn with Kitty Kelly, are no longer incognito. Gloria left a few orchids at the Seahorse, and Kitty Kelly and her mother dropped in at the Irvington. Bill Dixon tells us it is difficult to discover a snob.

Where the Maverick Theatre Group members take their baths is no mystery now. They go to the Barnes cottage (Mrs. Krum's). We hope the pump does not wear out. We understand the only other big bath in the Maverick is the Robinson's (Literary Digest).

Jerry Kountze, noted violinist, also has a pump. It is this big Maverick news: Jerry returns today and we are anticipating his parties. Jerry can make punch pizzicato! He is on WOR Symphony Orchestra, sustaining.

Returning Thursday, Kitty Kelly to the Village Inn—also Leon Barzin, violinist. Barzin, famous virtuoso, will appear on the Playhouse Concert at Woodstock next Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Talked today to Peter Whitehead, the prince of Byrdcliffe. They have so many famous folks up Byrdcliffe this year, we shall have to learn how to curtsy or something. Our own particular reason for calling Peter was to ask about Bill Simmons, the voice teacher. We have a pupil for him, but Bill returned to New York this week, and so our protégé will have to hold all that Mi-mi-mi business!

Confidentially, we do not go in for prima donnas, having known the best—Lina Cavalieri, Galli Curci and Mary Garden. But we are anxious to know Hertha Glatz, contralto, who arrives this week to be starred on the Vladimir Padwa concert at the Woodstock Playhouse Saturday.

We are considering, now, putting our hair up in curls. At 4 o'clock there will be a Byrdcliffe afternoon. And in case you have not got the habit of seeking sweetness and light up Byrdcliffe way, we suggest this series of lectures:

Under the direction of Dr. Martin Schuetz at 4 p. m. the schedule reads:

Monday, July 8
Stephen Bourgeois, art critic and adviser to the Albright Galleries, Buffalo, N. Y. "Two Polarities of Modern Art: Henri Rousseau and Pablo Picasso" (with slides).

Friday, July 12
Professor Henry D. Leonard, the Department of Modern Languages, Temple University, Philadelphia, "West of the Renaissance."

Alfred de Liagre acts as executive secretary and treasurer. The concert at the Playhouse Saturday is as follows: July 13: 4 p. m. All-Brahms program: Hertha Glatz—Contralto, Vladimir Padwa—Pianist.

Leon Barzin, violinist and conductor—was first violinist with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra and member of the Philharmonic String Quartet.

Hertha Glatz, contralto—Born in Vienna and studied at the State Academy of Music. American debut, 1937 as soloist with Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, under Otto Klemperer. Toured U. S. A. and Canada as leading contralto with Salzburg International Opera Guild. Sang title role in "Carmen," Chicago Opera Co.—appeared in "Tristan and Isolde" and "Walkure" opposite Kirsten Flagstad. Also sang with San Francisco and St. Louis Opera companies.

Recently Madame Glatz was heard over National Broadcasting Company with Arturo Toscanini. Vladimir Padwa since 1934 has been accompanist to the famous violinist, Mischo Elman. His musical career initiated in his native Estonia, and since then he has concentrated all over the world.

Dudley Digges was expected for the opening of the Maverick Group Theatre, but we have not heard that he is in town. Hervey White still has a red bird cage belonging to Dudley. There is no bird in the cage, but we suspect Dudley will want to take the cage home with him when he does visit Woodstock—just for luck!

Bella Heermann, noted opera star and sister of Norbert Heermann, gentleman artist of the swanky estate "Haymeadows" (formerly the deLiagre home—stead) a much feted guest for a few days in the artist colony. Bella was a favorite in opera in Berlin, and has appeared in concerts in Cincinnati and New York. Little Eva Korst, her niece, says Aunt Bella is expected to return to Woodstock soon.

NOT NECESSARY TO BE FORMAL IN REPLYING TO CLOSE FRIENDS' WEDDING INVITATION

Personal Note To Bride-to-be: Quite All Right, and Emily Post Says Family Probably Would Expect It

When any set form falls short of the purposes for which it was originally intended, then common sense naturally directs that it be modified or perhaps even replaced by something else more fitting to the momentary need. An example of this occasion is given in this question:

"Is it always necessary to answer a formally worded and engraved wedding invitation by writing an answer in the same third person form? I have just received a wedding invitation from a bride-to-be who was one of my dearest friends, but I haven't seen her for years, as I now live across the continent. I cannot go to the wedding and am wondering if in case the formally worded note may be replaced by a personal note to the bride. My question is in regard to not upsetting the of the wedding secretary."

But of course! Write a personal note to the bride! I can't imagine that you could think of doing a thing else. If you choose to overmeticulous you may send third person regret to her parents in addition to the letter to the bride. But I doubt very much the bride's family will think necessary, since the bride can certainly give your name, and names of any other persons who happen also to write to her personally, to the secretary who wants to check the lists. But preparing for a very big reception as suggested by your mention a "wedding secretary," a names not accurately recorded would make little difference.

Birth Announcements
Dear Mrs. Post: Should birth announcements carry the name of the baby, including family name too?
Answer: The announcement includes the baby's given name, but not usually the family name.

A Big Engagement Party
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it in good taste to invite almost a hundred people to a party at which daughter's engagement is to be announced? Isn't it better to have this party just for intimate friends and relatives?

Answer: There is nothing unusual in giving a big party, whether big or little, it is perfectly limited to relatives and intimate friends. In other words, a big party should mean that the engaged pair have very big families or hosts of intimate friends.

Shaking Hands With Gloves On
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it correct for a woman to shake hands with her gloves on if the other woman is not wearing them?

Answer: Yes. It is sometimes required that a lady put her gloves on to shake hands but never required that she take it off unless it is a riding or gardening or golf glove.

Volume of Stocks
At Lowest Level
In Over 20 Years

The waiting condition that characterizes the stock market these days was further emphasized in Monday's trading on the Stock Exchange, as volume sank to the lowest level for a full five-hour day, in over 20 years. Total transactions were 232,890 shares, the previous low mark being on June 29, 1920, when the total was 226,748 shares. The low mark before that was September 20, 1918, 213,300 shares. Price movements Monday were negligible and what changes there were were in a narrow range. Thus, the Dow Jones industrial average moved upward but .04 point, to close at 121.63; rails declined the same amount, to 26.02 and utilities lost .12, to 22.45.

Two low-priced issues, Packard and Curtiss-Wright, led the list of 15 most active stocks, both closing unchanged. Packard at 3 1/2 in turnover of 12,800 shares and Curtiss-Wright at 6 1/2 with but 4,200 shares dealt in. Two of the active stocks showed gains for the day. Square D Co. closing up a point and United Aircraft a half.

Many Wall Street men are taking advantage of the dullness in the market to enjoy a vacation period and rest up in anticipation of livelier times later on. Among the many uncertainties that counsel caution on the part of traders and which probably will produce dull markets until they are cleared up are the proposed excess profits tax legislation, the outcome of the threatened attack upon Great Britain and the action of the Democratic convention.

Meanwhile heavy industry continues to operate at a comparatively high level and the July Bulletin issued yesterday predicted that the Federal Reserve Board's seasonally adjusted index of industrial production for June advanced to 115, a rise of about nine points over the May figure. Last December the index stood at 128, highest point since it was established. In April this year it dropped to a low of 102.

Steel operations, rebounding from the holiday week letdown, are scheduled at 84 per cent of capacity this week, about where it was two weeks ago, when it stood at 86.5 per cent. Most commodity markets closed lower after an early advance and the Dow Jones index which stood at 52.27 at noon closed at 51.27, a loss of .06 point from Friday. New crop cotton futures closed with losses of six to six points, while July positions were up six and seven. Wheat at Chicago advanced as much as two cents a bushel in early trading, then reacted and closed 1/2 cent lower for the day. Domestic sugar futures were steady in absence of selling pressure, but there was September liquidation in world sugar futures and prices slid off to new lows for the year. Rubber futures closed as much as 37 points higher.

President O'Neal, of the American Farm Bureau Federation, says that agriculture stands to lose rather than gain as a result of the European war. He bases the statement on the fact that normally the U. S. sells abroad 52 per cent of its cotton, 35 per cent of tobacco, 21 per cent of lard and 11 per cent of wheat and wheat products. Following a meeting of directors of Packard Motor Car Co. yesterday, the following statement was issued: "The matter of a possible contract for the building of Rolls Royce Motors for England and the United States was discussed at a meeting of all the directors of Packard Motor Car Co. Packard Motor Car Co. is anxious to be of public service and is hopeful a satisfactory agreement can be reached, but there are many matters that require further study." It was stressed that the proposed business would not affect the car business of the company.

Manhattan Shirt Co. reports earnings of $180,115 for six months to June 1, vs. net of $161,148 in the like period year ago.

Cronin Announces
He Will Stick to
All-Star Lineup

St. Louis, July 9 (AP)—Manager Joe Cronin, king for a day of the American League entrant in the eighth annual all star baseball game, stuck to his Yankee laden lineup today but dropped Bill Dickey, New York catcher, to seventh in the batting order.

Luke Appling, White Sox shortstop, was elevated to sixth in the transfer. Cronin added that Red Ruffing would definitely start as pitcher. Manager Bill McKeechie's early morning doubt about his starting hurler extended to his entire National League lineup as his charges took over the batting cage.

"I may change my whole team after I see them work out," he said. A mixed salvo of boos and cheers greeted the appearance of Joe Medwick, Brooklyn outfielder, as he took over his familiar left field post in front of the bleachers. It was his first St. Louis appearance since being traded by the Cardinals.

Real Window Display

Louisville, Ky. (AP)—It was fortunate the morning was a holiday and downtown Louisville was almost deserted. Abe Goldberg, clothier, greeted two customers. The first selected a suit of clothes. Goldberg, pointing to a dressing room, told him to try on the trousers. Then Goldberg turned to the other customer. A few minutes later, he saw the first man emerge in new trousers from store front. "Where did you change?" he asked. The customer pointed to the open door leading to the street show window.

Prepares for Tourists

Extensive development of Victoria's scenic attractions is being undertaken by the State Government in an effort to encourage tourists from all parts of Australia and the United States. The government is spending $400,000 on this work. Work already done includes the provision of roads and tracks to inaccessible beauty spots, building of camping places and encouragement of private enterprise to open up resorts.

Newport Beach, Calif. (AP)

Back in 1905 Terrell Jasper was the first passenger to ride an electric street car into this resort city. Now the tram line has been abandoned, and the last passenger off the last car was Terrell Jasper.

Greater Emphasis
On Growing Grass

Ithaca, N. Y., July 9—Grass used to be taken pretty much for granted, and it was given little attention. Now, grass is graduating from the class of wild plants to the rank of a crop like those other grasses such as wheat, corn, oats, and rice. As a plant, grass is old; as a crop, it is new.

On July 10 and 11, farm leaders and scientists from several states and the United States Department of Agriculture will talk about grass, how to improve it and how to use it more extensively. A regional grassland conference will be held at Penn State College, sponsored by the Northeastern section and pasture committee of the American Society of Agronomy.

Dr. Carl E. Ladd of Cornell University will be the keynote speaker as he discusses the changing agriculture in the northeastern region where pastures are becoming increasingly important as a part of the cropping system. Other speakers from the New York State College of Agriculture will be Dr. Richard Bradfield who tells about soil building with grass, and Professor D. B. Johnston-Wallace who discusses grassland management.

One problem in everyone's mind—how to avoid the mistakes of 1814-18 if the United States expands its acreage of grains, fibers, and other crops to supply Europe—will be considered at the conference. Grasses have been neglected not only by farmers but by scientists as well, it is pointed out. Breeding programs with corn, wheat, cotton and other so-called cash crops are said to be at least 25 years ahead of those for grasses.

Public Hearing on Proposed Fire District

The people of Accord, in the town of Rochester, are taking steps to erect a fire district, territory to be taken in to embrace the area within a radius of two miles of the center of Accord village.

Following the establishment of the district and naming of fire commissioners a fire department will be organized and adequate fire protection equipment installed. Supervisor Howard Anderson stated this morning.

The Town Board has called a public hearing, to be held at Anderson's Accord Roller Rink on July 23 at 8:30 o'clock, at which time the petition asking for the creation of a fire district will be considered.

Excelsiors to Parade

At a meeting of Excelsior Hose Company last evening, the members voted to participate in the parade at Phoenixia on Saturday, September 7, when the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association will meet in that village. The company will be accompanied by its band and the Ladies' Auxiliary. The trip will be made by bus.

Runs Into Car

Henry A. Fishang of Lincoln street reported to the sheriff's office Monday night that while he was driving through Sawkill William McClellan of Brooklyn, riding a bicycle, ran into his car. He said the boy's mother refused to have him taken to a doctor, as he was not injured.

Asleep at the Wheel

Investigating an accident reported from Shokan at five o'clock this morning Deputy Sheriff McCullough found that a car containing four youths from the city had run into a culvert when the driver evidently fell asleep at the wheel. No injuries were reported.

About the Folks

Mrs. Kathryn Berry and the Misses Mona and Eileen Whelan of Brooklyn spent the week-end with Mrs. Clifford VanNostrand of New street.

Local Death Record

Funeral services for Edward J. Spalt who died Thursday afternoon were held Monday at 2 p. m. at his residence, 144 Hunter street. The services were largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends. The Rev. Russell Gaenzle, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, of which Mr. Spalt had been a member, officiated. Burial was in Montrose cemetery.

Miss Mary Agnes Mack, 64, of the Plains Road, Walkkill, died on Sunday after a short illness. Born in the town of New Paltz on March 6, 1876, a daughter of James and Margaret Regan Mack, she had lived in Walkkill for more than 25 years and was a member of St. Charles' Church, Ireland Corners. Thomas Mack, a brother, of Walkkill, survives. The funeral will be held on Wednesday at 9:30 a. m. in the Runk Funeral Home, Walkkill. At 10 a high Mass of requiem will be offered in St. Charles Church, Ireland Corners. Burial will be in St. Charles cemetery.

James McNulty died suddenly at High Falls on Monday. He was the son of the late James and Mary A. McNulty. He is survived by two brothers, Edward of Jersey City, N. J., and Thomas of Kingston; four sisters, Mrs. Frank Sohm and Mrs. James Larkin of Kingston, Mrs. Isaac Cantine, Hurley, and Mrs. Anna B. Gayman of Jersey City, N. J. Funeral services will be held from his sister's home, Mrs. Frank Sohm, 7 Clinton avenue, Thursday morning at 8:45 o'clock and from St. Joseph's Church at 9 o'clock where a Mass of requiem will be held. Burial will be in the family plot in St. Peter's cemetery, Rosendale.

Mrs. Gertrude M. Liagre Ellis, 63, wife of George W. Ellis of Clintonville, died at her home Sunday afternoon after a long illness. A resident here the greater part of her life, Mrs. Ellis was a member of the local Friends' church and the Friends' Circle. Surviving, in addition to her husband, are her sister, Mrs. Grace Smith of Newburgh and her brother, Joseph Liagre of New Paltz. Private funeral services were conducted at the home this afternoon. The Rev. Kermit Schoonover, pastor of the Friends' church, and the Rev. Clemmie Ellis White of Clintonville and New York city, a sister-in-law of the deceased officiated. Burial was in the Lloyd cemetery.

Archie Amnuth, a resident of Forest Hills, N. Y., died the Benedictine Hospital about 3 o'clock Sunday morning, following a cerebral hemorrhage which he had suffered at about 9 o'clock on Saturday night near Felten's Pavilion, Centerville. Mr. Amnuth, with his wife and three children, were riding in their car on the Saugerties-Woodstock road, when he was suddenly stricken. He managed to stop the car after being taken ill. Dr. Robert A. McCaig was summoned and after making an examination of the man, the doctor had him removed to the hospital in Dargan's ambulance. After his arrival at the hospital the man's condition grew worse and early Sunday morning he died. The body was removed to New York city later. It is said that Mr. Amnuth with his family had been guests at a summer hotel near Palenville.

Mrs. Howard C. Weygant, a native of Marlborough died suddenly of a heart attack on Sunday in her home, 9 Carter street, Newburgh. She had been in failing health for about two months. Formerly Luella Covert, she was born on February 12, 1871, a daughter of the late Edward and Amanda Terwilliger Covert. Mrs. Weygant had lived the greater part of her life in Marlborough. She also lived in Balmville for about five years, coming to Newburgh about two months ago. Besides her husband she is survived by two sons, Fred of Modena, and Robert Weygant of Newburgh; a daughter, Mrs. Alice Dawes of Marlborough, and a sister, Mrs. Eugene Roe of Newburgh. Funeral services on Wednesday at 2 p. m. in the H. S. Tuthill Funeral Home, Marlborough, will be conducted by the Rev. Claude McIntosh of the Presbyterian church. Burial will be in Cedar Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Mary Sherhandt Havlin, wife of Rudolph Havlin, died at the Benedictine Hospital Monday evening following an operation. She was born in Philadelphia, Pa. June 21, 1905, the daughter of Henry and Mary Weiss Sherhandt. Mrs. Havlin was a member of the Ladies' Aid Society of the St. Remy Reformed church and of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the St. Remy Fire Department. She was a devoted wife and mother and will be greatly missed by her family and a large circle of friends. Her husband; two daughters, Adele and Louise; also her parents; a sister, Henrietta Lev, of New York city and one brother, John Sherhandt of Warren Point, N. J. Funeral services will be held from the family residence in St. Remy, Thursday, July 11, at 2 o'clock. The Rev. Wilhelm K. Haysom, pastor of the St. Remy Reformed church will officiate. Interment will be in the family plot in St. Remy cemetery.

Farley Declares

'We Are Going to Have Convention'

Farley's own name would be placed in nomination during the national convention opening next Monday in the Chicago Stadium. "My position," he said, "remains unchanged."

It was recalled that he stated last March that his name would be presented to the convention. He has cast no light on his intentions in recent weeks. The party chairman opined that the convention might last six days. "I'm sure we'll finish up our deliberations by Saturday night," he stated. "Probably we'll begin nominating Thursday."

He announced that Speaker William B. Bankhead would deliver the keynote address Monday night and that Senator Alben Barkley, the permanent chairman, would speak Tuesday night. Commenting on reports that Barkley might forego the usual speech, Farley said: "I think it highly essential that he make a speech. The country is waiting for it."

Poultry Building Now Is Rice Hall

Ithaca, N. Y., July 9.—Cornell's poultry building, for more than a quarter century without a name, is now Rice Hall. It was named in honor of James E. Rice of Mexico, New York, emeritus professor of poultry at Cornell, who was head of the department for 31 years. It is the first college building in the country to be named for a poultryman.

About 300 persons were present at the ceremony to pay him tribute, including members of the Poultry Science Association of America in annual convention at Cornell. Speakers were President E. E. Day of Cornell; Liberty Hyde Bailey, first dean of the agricultural college; Dr. Cornelius Betten; L. W. Taylor, retiring president of the Poultry Science Association; J. W. Kinghorn of the U. S. Department of Agriculture; Dr. O. B. Kent of Chicago; and W. S. Mapes, president of the New York Poultry Improvement Association.

Wallace Sends Greetings
A statement from Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture of the United States Department of Agriculture, was read to the gathering. Secretary Wallace, in praising the work of Professor Rice, said he had known him for more than a quarter-century. "He is one reason why Cornell is a great institution," he said.

The Poultry Science Association chose Oklahoma A. and M. College for its 1941 meeting and elected the following officers:
H. L. Kempster, University of Missouri, president; D. C. Warren, Kansas State College, first vice president; R. M. Bethke, Ohio Experiment Station, second vice president; W. A. Maw, MacDonald College, Canada, secretary-treasurer; and the following directors: L. W. Taylor, University of California; L. M. Hurd, Cornell University; and J. H. Martin, Purdue University.

The Gordon award, consisting of a gold medal and $1,000, for distinctive contribution to poultry science advancement, was awarded to Dr. Donald C. Warren of Kansas State College. It was made as a result of his work in poultry breeding and physiology. Dr. Warren's research has been especially directed to the relation of the rate of feathering to sex, to the physiology of reproduction, to the genetic nature of mutations, and to other studies, such as correcting crooked breastbones in chickens.

The Poultry Science award of $100, for the outstanding piece of research of the year, went to J. C. Baetenfeld of Cornell. His work was on the relation of the anti-dermatitis vitamin to hatchability and on the water-soluble growth factor.

Home Service Extra Pounds Melt Away If You Count Calories

Watch Out for Fattening Foods

"Just a teensy-weensy bit!" sighs Mrs. Plump when her hostess offers a tempting dish.

Poor Mrs. Plump thinks that by taking little helpings, avoiding "seconds" she'll get slim. But that's not the way it works. To reduce you cut down on calories, not portions—because foods vary in caloric content.

For less than the 435 calories in one modest serving of Brown Betty with hard sauce you could have a whole delicious luncheon of low-calory foods. Tomato and shrimp salad with reducer's mayonnaise is only 60 calories; 2 slices melba toast, 80; and 1/2 cantaloupe, 50. Only 190 calories!

By just keeping your calories below 1,200 a day you lose 2 pounds a week. And with a caloric chart at your elbow you'll learn to pass up dishes like split pea soup (167 calories a cup), macaroni with tomato sauce (226 a cup). Instead take consommé (25 a cup), tomato stuffed with bread crumbs and ham (100 calories).

Trim down to the figure you desire with the healthful, tasty diet in our 32-page booklet. Gives low-calory menus for two weeks, caloric chart and low-calory dessert recipes. Explains 3-day liquid diet to start reducing. How to gain, too.

Carnival Performers Tell Facts About Their 'Stars'

Texas Charmer Says Most Snake Knowledge Is Wrong; Bruno's Pet Is Jock, the 'Monk'

Ellenville, July 9.—Whether it's about snakes or monkeys you can take these opinions as the real thing.

Mrs. Anna Coley, of Sherman, Tex., veteran snake handler, says "Ninety-nine out of every 100 persons are misinformed about snakes."

Joe Bruno, a native of Italy and a former lion and tiger trainer, says "A monkey is just like a human being—some of them are smart and some are dumb. And when it comes to personality, every monkey is just as different from others as you and I."

Mrs. Coley and Bruno were interviewed at a recent carnival in this village and both of them amplified their statements to give an interesting story of their respective charges. Mrs. Coley was supported in her statements by her daughter, Shirley, 16, who learned the business from her mother.

"The snake is probably the cleanest wild creature there is," added Mrs. Coley. "He bathes every day—never strays too far from water. And he sheds his skin frequently to wear a beautiful new coat."

And They're Not Slimy
The experienced performer, who has demonstrated snakes with the Royal American, Heller's Acme, Cetlin Wilson and Adams Exposition shows, exploded another common misconception in explaining that snakes are not "slimy," but have a clear, dry hide.

In discussing habits of snakes, she said that some, like the black snake, lay eggs which are hatched, others, like rattlesnakes, give birth to living young. The hoop snake story is just a fable, "glass snakes" are not snakes, but lizards which have the faculty of losing their tail in an emergency, but cannot "smash to bits," as often told; snakes are more afraid of persons than scary persons are, themselves; those are among the many questions clarified by Mrs. Coley.

Poison Is Removed
"Poisonous snakes which are shown in carnivals and circuses are first treated," added Mrs. Coley. "Poison sacs are punctured and fangs are removed. However, I've found as many as six sets of fangs in a single reptile. The snakes must be watched, too, because poison glands may start functioning again, after having been taken out."

Shirley, comely blonde, said she liked snakes "just like any other girl likes dogs or cats—they're just like a baby. Smart as a whip, too. Understands almost everything I say and can do plenty of tricks."

As for Monkeys
"As for monkeys, take my Jocko, for instance," said Bruno, whose perpetual smile has left crow-feet beside each eye, "he's just like a baby. Smart as a whip, too. Understands almost everything I say and can do plenty of tricks."

Jocko, a three-year-old rhesus, is featured in the Bruno act in his "horse-back" ride on a German shepherd. He also "plays the piano," eats with a knife and fork, plays ball and jumps from a 20-foot ladder.

In discussing habits of the monkey, Mr. Bruno said that each animal must be treated as a distinct individual and that most are inclined to be temperamental, if not given proper attention.

Diet is strictly vegetable. A monkey will eat meat, however, but this is avoided because a monkey who has tasted flesh will invariably chew his tail.

Cases in Police Court

Victor Zucca, 31, of 83 Cornell street, was arrested Monday afternoon on a warrant sworn out by his brother, Alfred Zucca, charging Victor with assault in the third degree. The hearing was adjourned to Wednesday morning.

Joseph Saccamano of 34 Boulevard was arrested Monday on a charge of overtime parking up-town. He furnished $2 bail for his appearance later in police court.

Agents Spent 18 Days at Bund Camp

Evidence to Be Used When Hearings Are Held in Jersey

New York, July 9 (AP)—Three Dies committee investigators, posing as members of the German-American Bund, spent 18 days in New Jersey Bund camps unearthing evidence to be used at future hearings of the committee on un-American activities, says Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (R-NJ).

Addressing a closed meeting of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania police executives yesterday, Thomas, a member of the Dies committee, declared that three Bund camps are so situated that they "could be used very quickly against important public works."

He said a check of cars entering the camp had disclosed that some belonged to workers in the Picatinny Arsenal.

Thomas specifically named camp Nordland in Passaic county; camp Midvale in Hewitt, and camp Federal Hill, as meeting places strategically located.

More than 100,000 persons, most of them from New York city, Hudson and Essex counties (New Jersey), visit the three camps every year, he said.

He urged a conference of police heads throughout the nation to formulate plans under federal supervision to combat activities of spies and foreign society agents, and said that the police forces of New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey ought to be increased.

SENATOR LOOKS AT BUND CARD

Asking why it is printed in German, Sen. Tom Connally (D-Tex.) studies the membership card of Wilhelm Kunze, national leader of the German-American Bund, when Kunze protested to the senate judiciary subcommittee in Washington against proposed legislation requiring registration of foreign-controlled organizations. Kunze said such legislation would force the Bund out of existence.
